Little Secret Overview

About this project

My family likes to play one night werewolf and because we're all locate in different locations, we play it online using this site called Netgames to help facilitate the game. It's very streamlined and fits in seamlessly with our experience on FaceTime. Recently, I went to Japan with a few Wharton classmates and had a ton of fun playing a game called Little Secret, which is a similar game to one night werewolf, but with a different theme and some different mechanics. I want to emphasize that my house had a ton of fun playing this game. It was a core bonding component of my house. After searching for a while, I couldn't find any online implementations of the game, so I decided to make my own!

You can play the game here:

- Little Secret Online

Check out the rules here:

- Little Secret Rules

It's multiplayer, so you may need a few devices to actually play this correctly.

I decided not to go with anything business related, because I have already built quite a bit that I use already. I figured that this would be a nice change of pace.
